

Thursday

Today we divided our group into two groups. One visited a firm producing f.ex. ear protection called Peltor. The other one visited a designer hotel. My group was in the designer hotel and it was really cool there. In the hotel there were many rooms. Some were cheap and some were very expensive. But as expensive a room was, as good was its design. In the hotel there were many old and valuable things hanging and standing around, for example one of the first elevators or many designer chairs, desks and many other things. In the evening there was a farewell party where we had dinner together, listened to music and talked to others. Some Swedish students of class 9 couldn't be there because they were at their graduation party. After both parties had ended, the students went home to pack their suitcases because the next day, we went back home to Germany. Bye bye Sweden : (

By: Adrian Huck, Merlin Rehberger